

Breaking news

Flights delayed at Southend Airport

Flights delayed at Southend Airport

First published 08:23 Tuesday 16 September 2014 in News by David Trayner

FLIGHTS at Southend Airport are delayed this morning.

Fog has delayed flights to and from the airport by up to two and a half hours.

An easyJet flight to Palma Mallorca, due to leave at 7am is not expected to set off until 9.30am.

Flights to Amsterdam, in the Netherlands, and Munster, in Germany, have also been delayed.

A Flybe flight from Antwerp, Belgium, scheduled to land in Southend at 7.10am is now expected at 8.25am.

The same flight was cancelled yesterday due to fog.

Flights to and from Stansted, Heathrow, Gatwick and Luton are also delayed.

For full details visit www.southendairport.com.

Comments (3)

12:39pm Tue 16 Sep 14

SARFENDMAN says...

Southend and City Airports both suffer occasionally from a fog issue because of the locality. This is something our Boris gave scant regard to when he came up with his loony plans for an Estuary airport location. Boris will soon be an MP and then his eyes will be looking towards Downing Street. God help us if that should ever happen.

teyeagle says...

Significantly better than last Saturday 13th when they delayed my flight for 14 hours without refreshment vouchers, then sent half the flight to a hotel without rooms and 20+ people ended up sleeping at Malaga airport. To cap it all when we did get airborne 45 minutes later than scheduled there was no buffet food available. I'm looking forward to reading Easy jets explanation of their ground crews total incompetence!

maxell says...

Its a good job they have navigation buoys in the river roach , the lights seen through fog.